FHLB Des Moines 2007 Fall Conference

Tellers to Technology

On October 11 – 12, 2007, FHLB Des Moines will hold its Annual Fall Conference at the Downtown Marriott Hotel in Des Moines, Iowa. The conference, titled Tellers to Technology, will feature industry trends, innovations and issues facing community bankers. Join us as we take a step into the future and explore the possibilities of tomorrow.

The conference agenda includes topics such as economics, finance, social media, rural economic development, biofuels and much more. Stuart Varney, well-known Fox News Channel business correspondent and anchor, will address economic issues and also moderate a panel of your peers who are innovative leaders in banking. Futurist and author, Daniel Pink, will show what leading companies are doing to position themselves and their products for the future while Ed Krei, managing director with The Baker Group, presents financial management approaches community banks can take to positively impact their bottom line. FHLB Des Moines will host a 75th Anniversary Celebration Reception and Dinner at our new location. This is an opportunity for you to enjoy food, music and networking with your colleagues as well as visiting with our 2007 Capital Community award winners about their unique projects, people and ideas that have been successful.
